

SOLVE STAFF RELATIONSHIP ISSUES!

RELATIONAL NEEDS WORKSHOP

Administrators agree that the gateway to amazing school culture is trust, but how can we gain that trust?

Relationships are the essential key to both trust, and any successful life experience. Without strong relationships, a school's cultural system will breakdown at its weakest links.

As a marriage and family therapist, JC Pohl has studied and refined a system for building relationships based on meeting each other's needs. This workshop is an intensive training that will clearly outline what relational needs are, and teach attendees how to use this new vocabulary to build stronger connections on campus, and in their daily lives.

This comprehensive program is ideal for elementary, middle, or high school staff members who want to build trust, open communication, and enhance relationships.

During this interactive experience your team will:

- ✓ Learn to understand and articulate their own relational needs
- ✓ Discover the immense value of meeting the needs of others
- ✓ Develop caring relationships, starting from a place of service
- ✓ Create a campus wide language that inspires community connection

ABOUT JC POHL

An award-winning producer & certified counselor, JC Pohl has reached over 9 million people in 7k+ schools. His relational needs workshops offer a proven blueprint to build school culture, and have been successfully utilized by schools, districts, and organizations across the country.

”

"JC's workshop developed trust, improved relationships, and ignited our school's culture. I strongly recommend him for any school culture related needs."

Dr. Richard Newman,
Proud Superintendent
(Alpine USD)