Have the teachers folder their paper into 3 columns

Title the three columns:

Coach:

Referee:

Team Owner:

Have staff members brainstorm the characteristics of each of these three types. After they are finished, have them share the lists with their table mates. At this time they can add to the lists. When their lists are complete have them highlight the characteristics that they have in common as classroom teachers. Discuss:

Do you as an educator have more qualities in common with the coach, referee, or team owner?

Which of the three do you want to share characteristics with as an educator?

How can a coaching lens improve learning in the classroom?
